We hope all of the boys will return and also look for a few new fellows to be with us after Christmas.

And the next issue of the BAYONET will see us in the new year with one of the brightest prospects for a good BAYONET in the history of the school.

EDITORIAL

The fellows are all very happy now and the Christmas vacation cannot start too soon for them. Although it is a most happy time we should not forget to come back with good new year's resolutions. It would also pay to keep posted while at home, for good times often bring bad results later on.

The Corps of Cadets takes this method of wishing the Professors a very happy and merry Christmas and pleasant New Year.

PERSONAL

Mr. T. M. Jarman of '04, who last year took a business course in Richmond, is engaged in running a large stock farm at Elkton. We certainly wish Mr. Jarman much success in his business.

Mr. J. A. Dunlop of '98 is now assistant city electrician of Memphis, Tenn. The BAYONET is glad to say that Mr. Dunlop is doing well.

Mr. W. D. Kibler of '94, who later became an attorney-at-law, is now one of the court stenographers of St. Louis.

Mr. William Nalle of '07 is now a "plebe" at the U. S. M. A. We are glad to note that he has risen to 8th stand in Math. during the last two months. We are glad to hear of Nalle's good work and know that he will keep it up.

It was good to welcome back with us since the Christmas holidays our classmates of last year—George Cook, Delmar Warren and James Stout.

Tom B. Richey of '05 is now at U. S. Naval Academy. We note with pleasure that he stood thirty-eighth in his class last finals. We wish Tom much success.

Rev. R. G. See, who was at A. M. A. from 1889 to 1894, is now a missionary to South America. He is spending the winter at his home near the Academy.

The Corps of Cadets is always ready to extend the "glad hand" to our faithful alumni of the neighborhood. We have some that never miss coming, such as Cyrus McCue, Chris Parkins, Grattan Crawford, Alex Dudley, Frank McCue and Bill Crawford. We report them still single, but it is said that Chris is making good headway at last.

We extend our congratulations to Dr. F. H. Crawford of '92, who was married to Miss Ada Summer-son of Staunton, Va., in November last.

FOXEY'S LEMON WAS A PEACH

"Well," said Foxey Taylor in the front gate at 'Squire Long's residence about 10:30 p. m., "that is your final answer, is it? Good bye, I think I shall take No. 36 for New York City. Possibly you shall hear of me again, at any rate, I hope you will not be sorry for what you have said to me to-night."

Jeanette Long had just handed a lemon of unusual dimensions to Foxey because he was red headed and freckled faced and was big and awkward, and rather the butt of ridicule in the village. He was good natured and took a joke so well that everybody liked to joke with him, and somehow or other the boy who is the subject of all kinds of jokes is not overly popular with our young maidens. Jeanette thought her tastes were better suited in Willie Baskerville, a slender youth whose hands were white as a
