

Remembering our brothers who have passed from this life

MANN, JULIAN EDWARD JR. '22

15 March 1989, age 84.

North Carolina's first director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). University of North Carolina, BS; North Carolina State, MS. Retired, 1973.

Survived by his wife, Carrie Mae Mann, two daughters, a son, and seven grandchildren.

At Augusta for two years from Middleton, NC. His son wrote in December 2003:

"My dad (Julian Edward Mann Jr.) said that he was allowed early leave for the holidays the same as the boys from California because it took him just as long to reach Hyde County (approximately 250 miles by train and boat) as it did for the California cadets to reach home by train.

"One of my father's proudest accomplishments was that he finished his Plebe year at AMA without a demerit." Jule Mann (Julian Mann III)

(1996 November Bayonet)
