A great year at AMA

As I only spent one year at AMA, I do not have too many memories, but two that I remember the best are these:

The first and most often thought of memory is early formation in the winter. As a first-year cadet, as many may remember, I had to make formation at first call. I would stand there and wish and pray that the sun would come up over the Blue Ridges and warm me up.

The second one was having a room on the third stoop in the middle of the back, which was the farthest from the front entry and having to brace the whole way. I got into a lot of trouble along the way with the upper classmen.

I really enjoyed that one year at AMA, though.
