

Augusta Military Academy

Oral History

Wayne S. Blackwood, '84
December 26, 2002

AMA taught me one of the most important lessons that one can learn about life: "Hard work pays."

I will always cherish the time I had at AMA. The only regret that I have is not being able to graduate. I know that attending AMA strengthened my determination and character. Being exposed to that environment has helped me to adapt and overcome many tough situations that I have encountered in my life.

Although it's been almost 18 years, I still practice many of the lessons learned while attending AMA.